City Building on the Waterfront

Ken Greenberg, Toronto's great innovator of urban design, will give a unique presentation at YQNA's next meeting with the title "City Building on the Waterfront." For over three decades, Ken has shaped downtowns, waterfronts and regions across North America and Europe, in cities such as Toronto, Amsterdam, New York and Paris. He has a prominent role in our own Waterfront neighbourhood, where we enjoy the results of his holistic approach and long-term view of planning. Ken and his wife Eti are often seen here on their bikes or in kayaks. Ken's book, "Walking Home: the Life and Lessons of a City Builder" expresses his philosophy that cities may be big, but they are enjoyed on a human scale.
