Waterfront Has New Pollution Threat

Joan Prowse, chair, Bathurst Quay Neighbourhood Association

Dr. Greg Evans, specialist in ultrafine particle pollution

International pollution studies reveal ultrafine particles (UFPs) so small they can enter our bloodstream and brain, threatening our health. This is the specialty of Professor Greg Evans of the U of T. He recently completed a study of air quality in Waterfront areas located between the Gardiner Expressway and Island Airport, both major UFP pollutants. We will learn from Dr. Evans how to protect ourselves from the spread of UFPs, along with commentary from Joan Prowse, chair of Bathurst Quay Neighbourhood Association (BQNA).
